CHED Recommendations 2026: Summary of Important Details

In response to the 2026 recommendations and observations of the Commission on Higher Education (CHED), the institution shall strengthen its policies, administrative systems, student services, documentation, and support mechanisms. The primary objective is to promote transparency, accountability, student participation, efficient service delivery, and compliance with applicable institutional and regulatory requirements.

Important Areas and Required Actions

1. Administration, Organizational Structure, and Coordination

- Post updated organizational charts and office contact numbers in visible areas.
- Conduct regular coordination meetings among the concerned offices.
- Maintain an official Student Affairs and Services (SAS) communication platform.
- Organize and maintain a digital repository for institutional documents, with appropriate access and privacy controls.

2. Student Handbook and Grievance Mechanism

- Update and implement the Student Handbook.
- Establish a clear grievance policy and process flowchart.
- Issue an official memorandum outlining grievance procedures, responsible offices, and confidentiality provisions.
- Maintain grievance logs and case documentation securely.
- Consult student representatives and obtain appropriate acknowledgment of the handbook.

3. Student Affairs and Services Financial Management

- Properly document and communicate SAS fees.
- Maintain approved budgets and regular financial reports.
- Require appropriate liquidation reports for student organization and Student Government activities.

4. Admission Services

- Establish clear admission policies, procedures, and requirements.
- Provide appropriate admission guidelines for ALS learners and applicants with disabilities.
- Maintain applicable policies and compliance documentation for foreign students.
- Communicate relevant student insurance requirements during enrollment.

5. Guidance, Counseling, and Health Services

- Ensure that guidance personnel meet the applicable qualifications.
- Strengthen counseling, psychosocial support, and student well-being programs.
- Maintain student records securely and in accordance with data privacy requirements.
- Establish accessible follow-up and referral mechanisms.
- Provide emergency transportation arrangements and appropriate health referral services.
- Ensure adequate clinic staffing, including at the Annex Campus, and proper documentation of NSTP medical certificates.

6. Partnerships and Stakeholder Engagement

- Establish and maintain Memoranda of Agreement (MOAs) with government and non-government organizations.
- Develop appropriate policies for community extension programs.
- Secure MOAs for off-campus leadership training activities when applicable.

7. Cultural, Sports, and Student Development Activities

- Prepare a separate cultural activities calendar.
- Maintain an independent annual sports calendar.
- Provide appropriate leadership development and training opportunities for Student Government officers.
- Establish and maintain a designated Student Government office.
- Properly document student organization activities and financial liquidation.

8. Student Publications and Gender and Development (GAD)

- Provide appropriate supervision and guidance for student publications while encouraging student participation.
- Disseminate official GAD announcements, programs, and activities through institutional communication platforms.

9. Library and Accessibility

- Update the official library address and location information across institutional records and communication materials.
- Maintain appropriate records concerning students with disabilities, with suitable confidentiality safeguards.

10. Security and Safety

- Ensure that security personnel possess the required licenses and credentials.
- Secure and maintain a valid sanitary permit.
- Clearly communicate emergency contact information, health services, and referral procedures.

Required Documents and Evidence of Compliance

The institution shall prepare, update, and maintain supporting documents to demonstrate progress and compliance with applicable requirements. These include:

- Updated organizational charts and office directories.
- Meeting minutes, attendance sheets, and coordination reports.
- Updated Student Handbook, grievance policies, and process flowcharts.
- Confidential grievance documentation and student consultation records.
- SAS budgets, financial reports, and liquidation documents.
- Admission policies, entrance examination procedures, and ALS guidelines.
- Guidance service records, personnel qualifications, and training certificates.
- Emergency transportation arrangements and health referral directories.
- MOAs with external partners and community organizations.
- Cultural and sports calendars.
- NSTP documentation and medical certificates.
- Student Government office, activity, and leadership training records.
- Student insurance information and applicable safety permits.
- Updated library information and accessibility records.
- Student publication supervision records and official GAD announcements.

Implementation and Monitoring

The concerned offices shall identify the recommendations relevant to their respective functions, designate responsible personnel, and prepare the necessary documentation. Regular monitoring and coordination meetings shall be conducted to assess progress, identify gaps, and establish timelines for pending requirements.

Completed requirements must have appropriate supporting evidence, while outstanding actions should have identified responsible personnel and target completion dates. Confidential student information must be handled appropriately and made accessible only to authorized personnel.

Conclusion

The implementation of the CHED Recommendations 2026 aims to improve the quality, accessibility, transparency, and effectiveness of institutional administration and student services. Through proper documentation, inter-office coordination, student participation, stakeholder partnerships, and continuous monitoring, the institution can strengthen its services and prepare for subsequent CHED monitoring and evaluation.
